Introduction

National Marine Sanctuaries

Our national marine sanctuaries and marine national monument embrace part of our collective riches as a nation. Within their protected waters, giant humpback whales breed and calve their young, coral colonies flourish, and shipwrecks tell stories of our maritime history. Habitats include beautiful rocky reefs, lush kelp forests, whale migrations corridors, spectacular deep-sea canyons, and underwater archaeological sites. Our nation's sanctuaries and marine national monument can provide a safe habitat for species close to extinction or protect historically significant shipwrecks. Ranging in size from less than one square mile to more than 5,300 square miles, each site is a unique place needing special protections. Natural classrooms, cherished recreational spots, and valuable commercial industries—marine sanctuaries represent many things to many people.

National Marine Sanctuary System

The National Marine Sanctuary Program serves as the trustee for a system of 14 marine protected areas encompassing more than 150,000 square miles of marine and Great Lakes waters from Washington State to the Florida Keys, and from Lake Huron to American Samoa. The system includes 13 National Marine Sanctuaries and the Northwestern Hawaiian Islands Marine National Monument. The National Marine Sanctuary Program is part of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, which manages sanctuaries by working cooperatively with the public to protect sanctuaries while allowing compatible recreation and commercial activities. The sanctuary program works to enhance public awareness of our marine resources and marine heritage through scientific research, monitoring, exploration, educational programs and outreach.

Sanctuary Advisory Councils

The NMSP has entered a “tipping period” as it relates to organizational maturity and stature within the marine conservation community. This tipping period very much encompasses our sanctuary advisory councils as well. The NMSP has reached a tremendous milestone with our sanctuary advisory councils. In 2005 councils were established for the Monitor, Flower Garden Banks, and Fagatele Bay national marine sanctuaries. Every site in the system, including the Northwestern Hawaiian Islands Marine National Monument, now has an advisory council. There are almost 400 people (230 Members and 160 Alternates) serving on advisory councils.

As of 2006, the NMSP has worked with councils for fifteen years. Like the sanctuaries themselves, the councils are constantly evolving and maturing. At some sites councils are tackling new, different, and sometimes more complex issues. At other sites, councils continue to address familiar issues in a dedicated and steadfast fashion.

Councils bring together Members of a diverse community to provide advice and recommendations to the sanctuary superintendents on the management and protection of the sanctuary, or to assist the NMSP in guiding a proposed site through the designation process.

The Members of the councils serve as a broad cross-section of the communities that lie adjacent to national marine sanctuaries. Members sit on councils representing such interests as conservation, education, research, fishing, whale watching, diving and other recreational activities, boating and shipping, tourism, harbors and ports, maritime business, agriculture, and maritime heritage, as well as jurisdictional partners from local, regional, state, tribal and federal agencies.

The NMSP regards the involvement of communities and the development of a stewardship ethic as vitally important to successfully protect sanctuary resources. Councils create a nexus between the communities, the resources and the NMSP. The NMSP is committed to the full support, utilization, and enhancement of councils at all sanctuaries and provides national support to that end. For example, the NMSP prepares numerous documents to support the councils, including this directory, a national annual report highlighting the accomplishments of each council, and a handbook that explains all the policies, procedures and protocols for council establishment and operation. Each year the NMSP also hosts a Sanctuary Advisory Council Chairs and Coordinators Meeting to bring together the leaders of our councils and the staff that support them from around the country.

The NMSP deeply appreciates the dedication, hard work and passion of each and every one of our sanctuary advisory council members.
