

Science for Marine Spatial Planning A Symposium

Monday, November 16th
9:00 am – 4:30 pm

NOAA Science Center
1305 East West Highway · Silver Spring, MD

We invite you to come learn about the importance and value of the natural and social sciences in resolving spatial use conflicts in the ocean. Speakers will highlight past examples of marine spatial planning and discuss future needs and approaches.

Presentations will feature scientists from NOAA, the Minerals Management Service, the Northwest Indian Fisheries Commission, non-governmental organizations, and academic institutions.

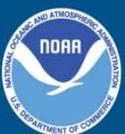

See reverse for an abbreviated agenda.

Please RSVP to attend in person via email to: RSVP.Sanctuaries@noaa.gov.
Seating is limited. Lunch will be provided for the first 100 guests to respond, courtesy of the National Marine Sanctuary Foundation. Please bring a photo ID.
